Research in Ayurveda seeks different aspects and covers a wide arena related to discovery and invention. The treasure of knowledge is still hidden in manuscripts in India. Manuscripts are the ethereal form of wisdom bestowed upon us.

The varieties of topics are described in these manuscripts. Among these, Ayurvedic manuscripts are also available in a substantial amount. The real essence of Ayurveda was compiled by the ancient scholars in the manuscripts.

It is very essential for any Ayurveda scholar to preserve and publish such ancient knowledge to restore the golden period of ancient system of Medicine. Ayurveda research scholars can play a crucial role for this collection and preservation of manuscripts, thus contributing to the wellbeing of the present and future generations and also thus adding up the glory of Ayurveda.

Only through enriching the source of knowledge and converting it into an implacable form as per present social life that the students and practitioners of Ayurveda fraternity can be made confident and successful in their own field. This will open up different viewpoints and practical approaches about the medical system and resolve confusions and misunderstandings.

This is an introductory workshop to the basics of Manuscriptology that will help Ayurveda research scholars to understand and apply them in the science
